

City of Angels

by Ucaoimhu

As many people know, the full name of the City of Angels is rather long, and shorter names are generally used. In this puzzle, every Down answer must have a letter added or subtracted before it is entered into the grid; reading left to right by the grid positions of the altered entries, the added letters will spell one, familiar, name for this city, while the subtracted letters will form a possibly unfamiliar name for this city, which literally means "City of Angels." Note that, correspondingly, adding a letter will form a familiar word, while subtracting one will not.

When the grid is filled, shade in all squares that do not contain a letter that is in the less familiar city name. The result will be a common way of writing the rest of the full name of the city, in the local language.

In addition, every Across clue has had a letter added or subtracted. The added letters, in clue order, will indicate a region of the grid; the subtracted letters in clue order will indicate another region. Circle each letter that is simultaneously in both regions; this will give both a symbolic translation and a verbal translation of what the shaded squares show.
