

Double Room

by Ucaimhu

The single grid on top is just too small to accommodate all of the Across entries without overcrowding, so I have provided an alternative seating scheme where these same entries are put into the two separate bottom grids. Don't worry about the enforced separation, however, as when the solving is over, everyone will get together again; 5 and 6 Down in the bottom grids, which answer the question asked in the most crowded parts of the top grid, will say how.

(Note: The Across clues are given in alphabetical order by answer; you must determine for yourself where each Across answer goes into the top grid and one of the bottom grids. Enumerations and tagging have been omitted.)
