

Search, in General

by Ucaoimhu

This puzzle leads to an item located in this house. Of the four shaded-in entries (whose clues contain no definition, just the cryptic part) three indicate items you would find in specific locations in the house; the fourth entry, which is a general term applying to all three, is (relative to the others) in the location for the item you are seeking.

Half of the remaining clues work normally; the cryptic part in the other half either (1) omits one letter from the solution, or (2) shows a letter that's beyond the boundaries of the entry in the grid. Also, if you circle the letters for both (1) and (2) in the grid, (a) some will be symmetrically opposite uncircled letters (by the usual 180° crossword symmetry), and (b) some won't be.

The (a) letters, followed by their uncircled symmetric opposites, will spell out the item you are seeking. Reading the (b) letters in a continuous path, starting with the letter at the position given by the starts of the (1) clues and the ends of the (2) clues, and ending with the one letter you circled twice, will give you another way to match the (a) letters up with their opposites, and also to convert the (b) letters into a depiction of the item you are seeking.
